OBJECTIVE

Grade 12 student with strong academic performance and hands-on experience in computer science, web development, and cybersecurity. Currently building skills through personal projects, online courses, and participation in numerous conferences. I am continuing to build my skills through personal projects, online courses, and participation in conferences, while also expanding my knowledge in software development, data science, AI, and cybersecurity. I want to apply my knowledge to problems in the real world while continuing to learn and contribute to practical solutions in future work and research.
